Rev. Francis W. Pattison Resigns as Pastor

Trinitarian Congregational Church Holds Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Trinitarian Congregational Church was held Wednesday evening beginning at 5:30 with a social half-hour and followed by an excellent supper prepared by the young people. The business meeting followed with reports by the officers and chairmen of committees. All these reflected the prosperity of the church and were well received. The pastor, Rev. Francis Wayland Pattison, gave an excellent report of the last year's activities. At its close, to the great surprise of the assembly, he presented his resignation and asked for a dissolution of his pastorate December 31. His resignation follows:

To the members of the Trinitarian Congregational Church of Northfield:

Dear Friends:

For several years I have had a fond hope that after twenty-five years of ministry I could ask the church to release me for awhile, that if possible I might visit the Holy Land and gain that renewal which travel and its opportunities of change offer. The twenty-fifth anniversary of ordination is almost here, but after the time abroad last summer it does not appear best for such a proposal to be considered. Moreover during recent days the conviction has been growing upon me that it will be mutually advantageous for us to sever the sacred relationship of pastor and people of the last fifteen years. I therefore present my resignation and ask that it go into effect December 31st next. After that time I hope to be able to take post-graduate study for a term unless it becomes evident that I should return sooner to a pastorate.

These years have had much joy in them. I well know the imperfections of my work among you. But your co-operation has been one of the inspirations of our united ministry, and the blessing of God has often been upon us.

As I prepare to leave this beloved Church there is only love in my heart for every one of you. "And now, I commend you to God, and to the word of His grace which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified."

Your pastor and your friend,
Francis W. Pattison

In withdrawing from the room as he finished, he asked Rev. W. W. Coe to take his place as moderator of the meeting. Many were the expressions of sorrow and regret. The people were unwilling to take action. It was voted that a congregational meeting be called for Wednesday evening, October 22, at 8 o'clock when they will consider whether or not the request of Mr. Pattison shall be granted and his long and faithful pastorate be terminated.

With Mr. Coe in the chair the unfinished program of the evening was completed by the election of the following officers: Clerk, Mrs. Iola Hodgson; Assistant Clerk, Mrs. Carl Mason; Treasurer, George McEwen; Auditor, L. I. Tabor; Deacons, L. A. Polhemus, Clifford Field, George Carr, L. I. Tabor and L. A. Webber; Trustee, Edward S. Frary; Sunday School Superintendent, A. P. Pitt; Primary Dept., Mrs. Frank Montague; Church Committee, C. T. Sherman, W. H. Waite, Mrs. M. E. Vorce and Mrs. Harry James. By vote of the meeting it was decided that beginning Sunday, October 19, the Sunday School will convene at 10 o'clock and close at 10:45. The morning preaching service will begin at 11:00.

Partial List of Awards at Community Fair

The Community Fair, Oct. 1st and 2nd sponsored by the Northfield Grange was a most successful event from every standpoint. The weather was perfect and there was a record attendance on both days. The Fair occupied both large rooms of the Town Hall. In the main hall were exhibits of handicrafts, public school work, local business and home made candy. There was a noteworthy exhibit by the sewing class of the High School. The garments made by the girls showed neatness and skill and were a credit to the makers as well as the sewing teacher, Miss Gerrish. A display of rare old china and glass cup plates was much admired—these were the property of Mr. L. O. Clapp and his daughter, Mrs. Carol Miller. There were many handsome bed quilts, rugs, both braided and crocheted and useful and fancy articles. The lovely, soft colors and neat work of rugs made by Mrs. Fred Irish were often spoken of—Two ship models, carried by Fred Fox were fine specimens of these popular articles of decoration.

In the lower hall were the agricultural exhibits and both fine specimens and great varieties of all kinds of farm and garden and orchard products were displayed on shelves and tables. Pomona, Ceres and Flora were most beautifully and generously represented and the evidences of rich and abundant harvest made the observer feel both pride in the industry of our towns people and security that our families, guests and cattle will be well fed during the coming winter. There is nothing which gives us more joy than the opportunity to notice and admire the familiar symbols of the New England Harvest time—the golden corn, the shining apples, the familiar pumpkin, brown nuts, purple grapes—All effect the senses with a peculiar pride and happiness.

The Community Fair gave our towns people just this opportunity to see and compare the work of our hands and of our neighbors. We have worked the summer through and now we have the harvest exemplified so delightfully in these displays. The Boy Scouts had a very nice booth with examples of their wood and hand craft. Neighbor Slate, our postmaster had many varieties of fine gladioli blooms. The Grange ladies food table gave proof of the excellent cooks in our community—canned fruits, vegetables, pickles and jellies showed the industry in our midst during hot summer days. A refreshment booth supplied hot dogs, rolls coffee generous triangles of home made pie and ice cream.

L. Lorimer Drury, Hermon '98, Fails to Rally After Operation

The community was greatly shocked to learn Wednesday of the sudden death of Prof. L. Lorimer Drury of Mount Hermon, in the Faulkner Hospital, Boston, at the age of 55.

Mr. Drury had undergone an operation for stone in the kidney which seemed simple and the operation was successful, the patient being upon the operating table but thirty minutes. Death came shortly afterward and was caused by a clot of blood on the brain.

He was graduated from Hermon in the Class of '98 and from Brown University in the class of '02.

Returning to Mount Hermon he organized the Alumni Association which now numbers 14,000 former students to all of whom he has endeared himself by his kindly interest and in many cases by his timely assistance in a number of ways. He was also connected with the History Dept. During last summer he visited the Mount Hermon clubs throughout the country assisting Mr. Spear in the Endowment drive. He had planned very extensively for the celebration of the 50th Anniversary of the founding of the school which will occur next June.

He is survived by his wife who was at his bed side, two daughters, Phoebe and Kathrine, a son Charles who is attending Mount Hermon and a brother, Harold N. Drury of Boston.

The funeral services will be held at noon today in Memorial Chapel, Rev. F. W. Pattison officiating and the burial will be in Mount Hermon cemetery.

The sympathy of their many friends goes out to the bereaved wife and family.

Franklin County Hospital Auxiliary Organize

The Board of Organized Work of the Franklin County Hospital have appointed Mrs. W. G. Webber chairman for Northfield in the hospital work. On Thursday, Oct. 2nd, Mrs. Webber served a most delicious luncheon at her home to the women whom she had chosen to assist her in the work. These are: Mesdames A. G. Moody, Honorary members; A. H. Bolton; E. F. Howard; F. E. Lilly; C. S. Leach; H. A. Lewis; F. H. Montague; E. S. Frary; J. W. Field; W. P. Stanley; C. M. Steadler; and N. P. Wood, two of whom including the hostess, being present.

After a delightful hour at the table the company adjourned to the living room and organized as follows: Chairman, Mrs. W. G. Webber; Chaplain, Mrs. E. F. Howard; Secretary and Treasurer, Mrs. F. H. Montague; Press Correspondent, Mrs. N. P. Wood.

After fully discussing the work it was arranged for talks to be given in the Public Schools telling of the needs of the hospital. Mrs. Webber is speaking in the High School, Mrs. Lilly in the Center Grammar and in the District; Mrs. Montague in No. 3; Mrs. Leach in No. 4 and Mrs. Bolton in Northfield. It is the hope of the Committee that every family in town may be represented either thru the contributions of their children or by themselves. The articles will be gathered and delivered by members of the committee. Articles may be left with any one of them or the list given to be called for.

Please contribute jellies, jams, canned fruit and vegetables, winter vegetables or cash. The smallest contribution will be welcomed, but be generous.

At the close of the meeting cars were provided, and the committee visited the hospital. Miss Barclay the Superintendent was most gracious in her reception taking them thru every department from the operating room to the kitchen explaining the work in detail. They also visited the nurses home and the class room where lessons were in progress in the nurses school.

It may not be generally known that a hospital not endowed has a deficiency at the end of the fiscal year.

Franklin County Hospital belongs to Northfield as much as any town in the County. Our citizens receive its benefits. Our poor are generously cared for, in addition nurses are being trained to care for our sick in our homes. We owe this institution our loyalty and support.

Any one having been cared for in a hospital will leave it with an immense respect and reverence for the doctors and nurses who go on, day after day, patiently, steadily, unselfishly working for mankind.

Fortunate Escape From a Serious Accident

When returning from school Thursday afternoon little Lois Waher ran blindly into the truck of William Dale as it was turning out of Warwick Ave. Mr. Dale was driving with due care but the child seemed to become panic stricken and ran into the side of the truck.

She was uninjured further than the shock.

Mrs. Charles J. Johnson Entertains at Spofford

Mrs. Charles J. Johnson entertained sixteen of her friends at luncheon and bridge at her cottage on Lake Spofford Thursday afternoon. The weather was propitious added to the enjoyment of the cutting at the home of this charming and hospitable hostess.

Frank Webster Knocked Down by Auto

George Webster while pushing his two wheeled cart down Main street last Tuesday evening about 6 o'clock was run into and knocked down by a car driven by Mike Lucas. He was taken into the Drug store and Dr. Wright summoned who dressed his injuries and had him removed to his home on Commonwealth Ave.

He received a scalp wound, broken knee cap and laceration of the hand. For a man of his advanced years the shock and injuries were serious but at last reports he is coming along as well as could be expected.

As he had no light on his cart it was difficult to distinguish him in the dusk. As Mr. Lucas did his best to avoid the accident no blame seems to attach him.

Mrs. Phillips Dies In Northfield

Mrs. A. J. Phillips died last Wednesday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. S. E. Walker.

Mrs. Phillips, who before her marriage was Mary Holland, was born in Canfield, O., Dec. 25, 1853. She became a singer and teacher of voice, and in 1871 married Prof. A. J. Phillips at Warren, O. For a number of years she was a soprano in the choir of the Presbyterian church at Warren. With her husband and family she came to Northfield in 1886, where Prof. Phillips was head of the music department at Northfield Seminary for 20 years until his health became impaired in 1906. From that time until his death in 1903 he lived in Brattleboro, Mrs. Phillips was a teacher of voice in Northfield Seminary from 1886 to 1895. For the past six years she has made her home at The Northfield Hotel.

Services were held at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Walker and the burial was at Warren, O., where Prof. Phillips and two of their children, Harriet and Walter, are buried.

Surviving are her daughter, Maud, C. (Mrs. S. E.) Walker of East Northfield, Arthur J. Phillips, well-known teacher of voice who has his studio at Carnegie hall, New York City, and two grandchildren, Blanche Phillips Walker of Providence, R. I., and Judson Phillips of New York.

First Parish Notes

On Rally Day there was almost 100 per cent attendance of those enrolled in the Sunday School, and as there were some new scholars, the attendance was the largest of any Sunday in the year. The earlier hour of meeting seems to be at once in favor. Mrs. Carroll Miller is the new superintendent.

There will be a rummage sale and food sale in the vestry of the church Thursday, the 16th, at 1 p. m. The church will be open from 3 to 5 on the afternoon before to receive articles.

At the Woman's Alliance meeting held at the home of Mrs. M. C. Keet on last Friday, Mrs. H. M. Briggs spoke on the necessity of every man and woman understanding the importance of the issue to come before the electorate November 4, saying that the second referendum to be on the ballot, if passed, would not affect National Prohibition, but will only cripple Massachusetts in the enforcement of the 18th amendment which will still be a part of the United States Constitution by taking away from our courts and our state and local police the power to enforce the law, and leaving it to only 50 federal officers to enforce. It will benefit no person in the state but the bootlegger. So it behooves every man and woman who would preserve the morale of Massachusetts to vote 'No' on the referendum.

Soil Liming Pays

Much has been said and volumes written about the reasons why soils need lime. That cultivated land, through years of cropping and leaching becomes acid and requires a liming material to neutralize that acidity. It is a fact well known to all. The inability of valuable legumes, such as the clovers and alfalfa, to grow on acid soils is also a point which is usually emphasized. These and several other reasons are generally set forth, but in the final analysis, one reason, only, justifies the extra labor and investment necessary to lime the land, and that reason is—LIMING PAYS.

Recently, the National Lime Association collected data on liming experiments conducted by 11 State Experiment Stations. These figures cover 60 tests on 16 different field crops. On summarizing and averaging this information it was found that the application of a liming material increased crop yields an average of $10.86 per acre each year at a cost of $8.40 per year. Thus each dollar invested returned that same dollar and $2.02 besides. This represents a return on the investment of 202%.

Almost without exception the more prosperous and progressive farmers consider soil liming an important part of their program. These men know that in order to make money in the highly competitive agricultural industry, they must use every means to increase the production on each acre and thereby produce each ton or bushel of farm produce at a lower cost than the other fellow. Lower production costs mean more profits. For this reason every acre of acid soil should be limed whenever needed.

Developing Commercial Air Lines

In the race among world powers for supremacy in the air, the United States is exerting every effort to gain and keep the lead without resorting to the subsidy or 'dole' which is contributing so largely to the progress of aviation abroad.

The race up to the present time has been a see-saw, with the United States, England, Germany and Italy in the lead at various times.

The United States got off first at the start when the Wright brothers invented the airplane. Hawker and his co-pilot won a lap for the British by hopping from New Foundland to Ireland in 1919. America again took the lead, as a result of Commander Reade's round-the-world flight that same year, but Britain was runner-up with her dirigible R-34, which made the round-trip between England and America.

Lindbergh renewed America's claim to leadership with his New York-Paris flight, and Chamberlain, Byrd et al clinched it. Since then, an American has flown to the North and South poles by airplane; an Italian and a Norwegian have flown over the North pole in a dirigible; Americans have flown to Hawaii and an Englishman, Kingsford-Smith, commanded a flight across the Pacific to Australia, which he followed this year an East-West crossing of the Atlantic.

In the meantime, a German airplane, the Bremen, was first to negotiate the East-West crossing of the Atlantic—a feat which a German seaplane and a French airplane re-accomplished this summer. De Pinedo gained for Italy the honor of the first East-West crossing of the South Atlantic.

But such pioneer flights are admittedly in the stunt or spectacle class, and are useful only insofar as they hasten the establishment of intercontinental trans-oceanic commercial air lines.

The Graft Zeppelin admittedly overshadowed all previous accomplishments when she crossed the Atlantic, and later sailed around the world, with passengers and a cargo of merchandise when she crossed the Atlantic, and later sailed around the world, with passengers and a cargo of merchandise, and Germany, from the commercial standpoint, thus capped the records of all her competitors.

The Government at Washington does not evince much interest in stunt flights. But every department of the Government is interested in the development of commercial air lines, and is doing everything in its power to encourage the establishment of trans-oceanic trade routes.

This attitude is amply demonstrated in the case of the privately owned seaplane "Trade Wind" which, with a cargo of mail and merchandise, will take off in New York, on October 9 on a round-trip flight to Paris via Bermuda and the Azores.

Five major departments of the Government are throwing their resources into this fight in order to assure it every opportunity for success.

The Department of State is conducting complicated negotiations with foreign powers to obtain their permission for the "Trade Wind" to land at Bermuda and the Azores for fuel, and on the Seine at Paris, its destination. (This department has also issued to the pilots of the "Trade Wind," Lieutenant William S. MacLaren and Beryl Hart, their passports—the first ever obtained by aviators in advance of an international flight.)

The Navy Department, through its Hydrographic Bureau, has supplied the pilots with the cores of charts and maps upon which their flight is routed in detail. The course, with positions to be verified by observations at 15-minute intervals during the 40-hour flight, is being checked by navigators at the Lakehurst Naval Station and Annapolis.

Throughout its construction at the Bellanca plant, New Castle, Delaware, the "Trade Wind" was inspected by the Department of Commerce, which also issued experimental licenses for the test flights and transport licenses for the trans-oceanic haul with mail and cargo.

Functioning through its Weather Bureau system, the Department of Agriculture will not only supply to the "Trade Wind" the continuous service regularly broadcast over land and sea, but will also make every effort to give the pilots of the seaplane advance special warnings of storms which may threaten to cross their path.

Lastly, the Post Office Department has announced its readiness to give proper cancellation at New York to the hundreds of good will postcards which are being assembled at the Washington National Bank of New York for loading on the "Trade Wind" just prior to the take-off.

Girls Defeat Boys in Hunger Contest

Harpout.—Ten girl students of a high school here challenged an equal number of boys to a competition. The girls sat on one side of a table that was piled up with delicious food, and the boys sat on the other side. The side which abstained the longer was to be declared the winner.

The boys stood the test for eight hours, while the girls refused to help themselves for twenty-six hours and forty-six minutes.

A communion sermon under the direction of Rev. George K. Carter of Greenfield brought the morning session to a close. Dinner was served at noon by the ladies of the Colrain Congregational church.

The devotional exercises at the opening of the afternoon session were again led by Rev. Elliott V. Sleekles. Mrs. Howard A. M. Every disturbance in a foreign country affects business in America. The trouble in India has affected the cotton trade between England and this country, the trouble in China has affected our trade with China 5 million a month. Our spirit of trade isolation works fine except when other countries turn the tables on us.

The edict that black fingernails are to be fashionable notes the Minneapolis Messenger, should be greeted with great enthusiasm in newspaper offices as it automatically puts the entire force in the height of fashion.

Which man has made the greatest success of life, the man who has amassed a fortune and built a great industry and has not content, or the man who has small means, a small home, a small business, a few friends and contentment?

Most folks see things alike if they have the same view point. The view point one has is the foundation of one's opinion and given the same starting point human nature reacts largely the same.

While a considerable number of people refuse to subscribe to the theory that the human race descended from the monkey there is this to say, no one ever saw a two faced monkey.

Believe it or not. Went to a picture show last night and the hero never once said "O. K. baby," and the heroine was critical to the extent that she never once said "oh yeah."

What the country needs is a college that offers a course in common sense and requires every student to major in it.

There never was a time in the history of this nation when it needed strong leadership more and had less of it.

We do not trail along with those who claim that the prohibitory law should be repealed because it is not enforced. We believe the prohibitory law should be given a fair chance and ten or fifteen years test is nothing in the history of the life of the human. Few laws when first passed have met with the instant and unanimous approval of all people, but the presence of the law and a consistent effort to enforce it have tended in many instances to build up in the consciousness of the people a sentiment in favor of the law. The prohibitory law should be given a chance.

Speaking of immortality, a hen's son never sets.

Citizens, who have cleaned their premises of the moths but find their trees endangered by the neglect of owners of adjoining estates, should make complaint by the Selectmen. The infestation of a residential neighborhood by the neglect of a few will not be tolerated.

The eggs of the gypsy moths should be destroyed at once with creosote. They should never be scraped off the object on which they are laid. Careful search should be made for gypsy moth egg clusters, not only on trees, but also on house wall, stone walls, fences and in rubbish heaps, etc. (Trees in which cavities occur and which it is desirable to cut should have the cavities tinned or cemented. This is important.) The present and future cost of combating this insect can be greatly reduced by cutting and burning worthless brush, hollow trees, etc. A few trees well cared for are more valuable to the property owner and the community than a large number of neglected trees.

The nests of the brown-tail moths should be cut off the trees, carefully collected and burned in a stove or furnace.

Full instructions as to the best methods of work against the moths may be obtained from the Local Superintendent, Roderick Parker, or from the State Forester, Room 519, State House, Boston, Mass.

Work done by contractors should be inspected and approved by the Local Superintendent before payment for the same is made.

Damage Done to Trees

When the Sap Freezes

Sap in trees frequently freezes during the winter. The freezing point of water is decreased by the addition of substances in solution. Since sap contains various solutes its freezing point is considerably below 32 degrees and accordingly it does not freeze in moderate freezing temperatures. Trees are further protected by the fact that the moisture content is not so great near the surface in the winter as it is in the summer. But the sap freezes during extremely cold spells and sometimes much damage is done to the trees.

The United States forest service says that in the Canadian woods when the temperature is 40 to 50 degrees below zero the ruptures of tissues in trees caused by freezing can often be heard as a sort of sharp report. As a rule freezing that produces sufficient pressure to rupture the tissues results in vertical cracks running up and down the trunk.

In succeeding seasons of growth the tree attempts to heal over these cracks but ridges of protruding scar tissue remain as evidence of the ruptures. The wood of trees is frequently frozen, but generally no serious rupture results because the moisture is evenly distributed through the tissue.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Mass. Citizens Pay For Presence of Automobiles on Highways

Every citizen in Massachusetts, motorist or pedestrian, pays heavily for the presence of automobiles on the highways. If he is so unfortunate as to be an accident victim, the cost is immediate, direct and terrific. If he escapes misfortune, he nevertheless, pays indirectly for this protection. For all this safety work, the cost of which he is helping to defray, what does he as an individual get in return?

The governor's committee on street and highway safety has answered this question by describing a typical day of the average motorist. At every turn he is safeguarded through activities pretty definitely traceable to the work in this state, according to the committee's analysis yet all this aid does not preserve his life, if the individual for a moment relaxes his own vigilance.

An average motorist's typical day is portrayed by the committee as follows:

Early in the morning he reads in the newspaper items which should have seen accounts of a frightful motor crash. He finds also a list of the week's death toll. Possibly he scans another statistical story that collision deaths are increasing faster than pedestrian deaths. Possibly he studies a map printed by the automobile editor showing shorter and alternative routes, so that he will reach his destination more quickly by a little careful planning than by hurrying to make up time on the road.

Because he has read of carbon monoxide deaths, he leaves his garage open when he warms up his engine and he backs into the highway in a machine as nearly mechanically perfect as possible. Engineers have so improved their product that it stops more quickly and is generally more readily controllable than cars on the road only a few years ago. The vigilance of officials has made him keep his equipment in good order.

The hedge at the corner of his street has been cut down through the efforts of his city's local safety committee and a bad curve on the next corner has been eliminated so that he can see approaching cars in time to avoid them. The police department, working with state approval, has instituted a boulevard stop at the next bad crossing, which he might disastrously have rushed over. The sign is of the same type that he encounters in every other community, so that he recognizes it and understands immediately what he is to do. As he goes through the square, an effective system of signal lights send him along quickly in spite of a heavy flow of traffic, where otherwise, irritated by long delay, he might have attempted to make up lost time on the next unpoliced stretch of road.

His neighbor, who drinks and who he was afraid would some day crash into him, has had his license taken away from him, so at least that one more worry is gone. His last encounter with a traffic policeman impressed him with the fairness of the officer so his time he is inclined to observe faithfully what he is told to do, even though he doesn't immediately see the point of it. White lines on the road help him drive at night and curb him in his old time inclination to pass other cars whether or not he was under the brow of a hill.

And so he rolls on through the day, protected at every turn by agencies working in his interest, constantly reminded of what he should do to avoid trouble. "If it only wasn't for the other fellow, we'd always be safe," he said to himself as he steps on his accelerator in a final burst of confidence and takes a chance at squeezing past a car on a curve. This was just what the "other fellow" happened to be doing also, with the result that the other fellow was killed and he himself seriously injured. Hundreds of such cases convince the committee that its big task still remains to impress upon all persons so forcibly that they will never forget them, the fatal possibilities of even a single departure from carelessness.

The Name in Her Mirror

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

DORIS GRAHAM had returned to spend the summer at the quiet, cliff-built summer resort where she had been so carefree and happy five years before.

"But isn't it a stupid place to live in for three months?" asked her chum in the office.

"It wouldn't suit you," admitted Doris.

"And that dreadful trip every day," lamented the other girl.

Doris was not to be discouraged. She wanted to get away from the city, wanted to sleep in the country, wake up in the country, have her Sundays and Saturday afternoons in the open.

And so she had established herself in the plain, old country boarding house that she had lived in when her mother was with her and life looked rosy and merry.

Now, she was tired, a trifle discouraged at the lack of variety in her life. There was a vacancy she could not quite analyze, but she ascribed it to the fact that she could not get accustomed to living without her dear mother.

On her first free Saturday afternoon, she wandered about the old village streets, stopping here and there to linger under a familiar tree, stooping to gather a wayside blossom.

"I'll just go down to the post office to wait for the distribution of the late mail," she said to herself, as she neared the little group of shops of which one was the post office.

It was as she was entering the post office five years ago that she had first seen Archie Olmstead. The thought now quickened her breath, sent that forlorn hurt straight to her heart.

What had become of him? Why had she never heard from him?

How many times she had asked herself that question only to find herself unanswered.

She found a letter for her from the girl in the office who, secretly, would have enjoyed being with Doris, but who hesitated to invite herself.

Doris, thrilled at receiving a letter from the hands of the same postmaster who had stood behind the window thumbing the letters five years before, stood beside the scratched and discolored wall to read it.

As some one pushed against her, she moved. She bumped her head, ever so slightly, against the corner of the glass-faced wall cabinet that held unclaimed letters.

For a moment she stared at the envelopes posted inside. Suddenly, she stared. There was her own name—Doris Graham.

Hastily, she sought the postmaster and told him that there was a letter in the case that was addressed to her. Together, they got it and Doris, feeling, somehow, to read it in the midst of so many eyes as were upon her at this mail hour in the village, put it in her bag.

When she was alone she opened the envelope. It was a letter from Archie. In it he told her this was the third one he had written and if he received no answer this time he would decide that she had amused herself for a summer by making him fall in love with her.

If she wrote one letter over that week end to Archie, she wrote a dozen. None suited her. She could not seem to find words in which to tell him all that had been in her thoughts of him, since they had met. She wondered where he was. Could this address be the right one?

On Monday at the office she tried again, this time on her typewriter. It was a stupid letter. She destroyed it. It was still light when she arrived in the country these June nights and she decided that she would be able to pen a short note to Archie if she used the post office pen and ink on the old shelf desk where they had written each other so many tender notes in other days. With a piece of paper in her bag, she went to the village and wrote to Archie. As she stood looking at the much-used blotter on the shelf, her handbag open with its mirrored back, a familiar scrawl was reflected in it.

She held the mirror over the blotted name. Yes—it was his name in his handwriting. Her heart thumped madly. He must be here—in this very town—now. The name had been written that day.

Posting the letter she had written, she hurried back to the boarding house.

When the motherly old landlady came forward, she saw that they had met on the walk leading through the arch of maples. She had remembered their early romance. She was gratified at its renewal.

It took the whole evening to explain the strange tricks fate had played them during the years of their separation. But the faith of each of them was unshaken and Doris found herself later comparing the great happiness of her present summer with the shallow, frivolous gaiety of that holiday five years ago.

"And I knew all the time," Doris heard from her chum at the office. "that there must be some good reason for your craving for that stupid summer resort—some other reason than the country air."

Is it?

Another way to make your wife suffer is to muller over a letter and then thrust it in your pocket with out comment.—Exchange

Why Some Towns Go Ahead

If one could look into the history of the towns that have failed to make the progress they should, it would be found that the secret of their lack of success was their failure to pull together.

There are few towns that do not have plans and leadership enough to make of them anything they desire to be.

The difficulty is that they do not pull together. The leadership of the town instead of getting behind a single plan and pushing it to completion contends, this group for one plan, and that group for another. The energy of the community, instead of being centered on one definite object and goal, is scattered and dissipated, and in the end nothing is accomplished.

The ability to give up gracefully to another, and to fall in and work for another's plan, is not given to every individual, but the communities that possess men who are so constituted that they can yield their own plan and take up another's, and work for it as their own, are the communities that achieve their goals and accomplish the most.

The most interesting person to talk to is the person who thinks and has the courage and independence to express his thoughts.

Present Vogue in Architecture and Furnishing Restores Wrought Iron to Many Uses

It may be questioned whether the forges of medieval Spain or any later time, in Europe or colonial America, ever surpassed for grace and effectiveness the products of our best art metal shops today.

The present trend of architecture has been largely responsible for this development. Residential designing calls for authentic reproductions of ence may dictate. We have a resulting wealth of good andirons, fire tools, fire screens, hearth seats, benches, chairs, lamps, chandeliers and lighting brackets, flower baskets, curtain rods and like things too many to name.

Our cathedral-like office, bank, and apartment buildings offer many opportunities for ornamental iron work, and nothing is more in keeping with U. S. Mint at New Orleans whose roof of wrought iron sheeting is 95 years old and still good.

In Hollywood home of Bebe Daniels, well defined types; Old English, Colonial, Spanish, Italian, etc. All these require ornamental iron work and other accessories of appropriate character. There are several reasons for the prominence of wrought iron. To begin with, all hardware was formerly hand made; and no other metal carries the hand made look so effectively as wrought iron. Again, the climate of the countries from which these revived styles are brought, was such that for ventilation and comfort iron gates and grilles, gratings, and fences were used instead of doors and close shutters. When these time-honored objects come back, they not only bring with them old companions but also prepare the way for some that our grandfathers never knew, as modern conventhe design of such architecture than the grace and beauty of wrought iron which has been so much associated with it in the past.

Like other things of the most unquestioned merit, wrought iron has been subject to fluctuations of favor. Few things, indeed, are indispensable, and vogue may shift from time to time.

But wrought iron has come back. The same qualities that endeared it to craftsmen of other times, attract the sincere and intelligent worker today.

Its great durability in many useful forms, some as prosaic as roofing, pipe, or fence wire, is winning new recognition.

Designers and artisans grow fond of it, discriminating patrons of the arts and crafts approve of it, and its place in our buildings and elsewhere is enlarged year by year.

MRS. REGINALD K. . . .

Who has just returned from her Riviera villa, was seen dancing last night at the Central Park Casino wearing this stunning evening gown from Miller Scours. It is made of silver lamé gauze and has a very full circular skirt. An interesting bolero line is introduced by shaped trimming bands which curve up in front and down in back. With this Mrs. K. wore some exquisite jewels designed by Boucheron of Paris--a triple-strand necklace and long earrings of carved emerald balls. And, of course, to complete the costume she wore long white kid gloves and carried a silver brocade bag.
Pictorial Printed Pattern No. 5281 is an accurate copy of this frock.
Sizes 14 to 42, 65 cents.

Chevrolet Promotes Sales Managers

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 10. Appointment of Mr. W. E. Holler as an assistant general sales manager of the Chevrolet Motor Company, succeeding J. C. Chick who was recently transferred to the Cadillac division of General Motors as sales manager, was announced here today by H. J. Kling-ler, vice-president and general sales manager of Chevrolet.
Mr. Holler, formerly Eastern Regional sales manager for Chevrolet, will have sales jurisdiction over the Eastern half of the United States, following his promotion, while D. E. Ralton continues as assistant general sales manager in charge of the Western half of the country.

Mr. Holler has been a member of the Chevrolet organization for five years, and has seen field service at Los Angeles, St. Louis, Pittsburgh and latterly at Buffalo, headquarters for the Eastern region.
He is being succeeded at Buffalo by W. M. Packer, who becomes Eastern regional sales manager after five years colle.

in the Chevrolet organization, latterly as one manager at Los Angeles. P. F.
Minnock, formerly one sales manager at Minneapolis, succeeds Mr. Packer at Los Angeles. G. I. Smith, who entered the Chevrolet ranks as a retail salesman, leaves his post as one manager at Davenport, to succeed Mr. Minnock, and is in turn succeeded by F. N.
PHELPS, formerly city sales manager at Cleveland.

Each move is a distinct promotion and is in line with the established Chevrolet policy of selecting new executives from within the Chevrolet ranks, Mr. Klingler explained.

Noting that within a week the two Chicago families agreed to trade babies, the Minneapolis Messenger, in lieu of any other valid reason, suggests that it is possible both developed colle.

Off to the movies ::

Leisure time is the lot of this young wife. Oh yes, dinner will be served on time-- piping hot--brown roasted and done to a turn.

You see our young wife has placed all the vegetables and a roast in the electric oven. She has set the automatic time controls to turn on the heat at 3:30 and to shut off at 5:45.
So at the usual time dinner will be served perfectly cooked.
And with it all our young wife has enjoyed herself all the afternoon.

Now this is being done everywhere, right now, today.

You, too, may have this comfort, convenience and leisure time with an automatic electric range.

of any size after 1 P. M. on Wednesday.

Roxy's Wrought Iron Gates

A highly individual and daring piece of work in wrought iron is the beautiful pair of gates lately installed in the New York apartment of S. L. Rothafel.

Iron Gates in "Roxy's" Apartment

The daring consists in a symbolic representation of the owner himself,
"Roxy," as he is familiarly known to the American public. He is introduced as the genius or personification of music, holding in his hand threads that run out to control minor figures representative of song, instrumental music and the dance as employed in his famed "Cathedral of the Movies."
The treatment of this novel subject matter, however, is characterized by restraint. It embodies such feeling for the possibilities of wrought iron, such respect for the time-honored marks of smithcraft, that it has been greatly praised.--Wrought Iron Record.

Quaint Old Land's End

There is no spot in England more wrapped in mysterious charm than Land's End. It is the jumping off place of a million imaginations, and when the freedom to travel is possible, a trip to Land's End will prove one of life's happiest realizations. If you would try it, put up a week-end or more at St. Just, or St. Ives, Penzance, or at old familiar Penzance of Gilbert and Sullivan fame. After a night's rest, wander forth into the quaint old streets, visit fisher homes in sheltered nooks, climb old cliff paths, pulling and puffing out the finest Atlantic air and before the train takes you away you will discover that the lure of Land's End was a charming trick to introduce you to several of the loveliest villages of old England.--Boston Herald.

Vacation Important

The Public Health service says that a vacation is one of the most important of our social institutions. In a world that is so arranged that most people are compelled to work during the greater portion of the year, a change, a rest, a vacation, if properly taken makes the work possible. Every man and woman is entitled to a vacation. Every woman engaged in maintaining a home is entitled to a vacation. It is not necessary to go long distances, but it is necessary to get out in the open. A vacation should be a time set aside for the building up of that reserve of health and bodily vigor necessary to carry people through the long periods of work which must follow before the next vacation season rolls around.

WHAT WE THINK

By Frank Dixon

More farm relief. This time they are going to loan him money. But the only farmer who can get this money is the one who doesn't need it. Later on, these farmers they loan it to will be in the same fix as the ones who gave help now. If some wise man would think up a plan whereby the farmer could sell his crops for enough to pay expenses and for his labor, that would be relief. But no, they propose to loan him money to produce more to sell for less. Wonderful state-manship.

When they get the machinery running, we are going to ask for a loan on strawberries and see where we get.

All of the older generation have heard of one of Ben Franklin's philosophies. "Early to bed and early to rise, make a man healthy, wealthy and wise." Well, we have followed it, but we are only wealthy and wise—just two-thirds of what we should expect. I guess a man shouldn't kick if he gets the best two out of three.

Maybe we have started something. There are always people who will want to argue the question, but we were just making a statement and it is not open to argument.

Canons of Painting

The celebrated "Six Canons of Painting," which have been the basis of art criticism in the Far East throughout subsequent centuries, are, translated freely: (1) Life motion engendered by spiritual harmony; (2) use of the brush in rendering bone structure; (3) delineation of forms in conformity with objects; (4) application of colors appropriate to the kinds; (5) spacing based on proper planning; (6) copying of classic pictures, thereby preserving tradition.

Edith Bennett, Soprano To Sing At Northfield Seminary Auditorium

Edith Bennett, soprano, soloist of the Old First Church of Newark, N. J., with her husband, Rodney Saylor, accompanist, will give a song recital Monday evening, October 13, at 7.45, in the Northfield Seminary Auditorium at East Northfield, Mass.

Edith Bennett has sung in many concerts in New York, Boston, and other cities and has recently been centering her music activities in Newark. She is a person of much charm, and pleases her audiences by her personality, voice, and high type of interpretations. She is a graduate of Smith College, and has appeared as concert artist in the Smith College entertainment course. In 1923 she was engaged to sing in the first complete broadcasting concert to be radiophoned from this country to Europe. The selection was made from a long list of soloists because of "the rare beauty, power, and flexibility of her voice, her exquisite artistry, and the crystal purity of her diction in all languages." She has been acclaimed as the world's finest radio singer.

Why Heavy Timbers in Colonial Frame Houses

Every American feels his interest kindled when he spies a historical frame dwelling whose construction date may go back 150 to 200 years to some early Colonial period. Comments upon the soundness of the construction methods of those early days are made frequently without the speaker knowing in what ways they differ from today.

The braced timber frame was invariably used along the North Atlantic coast. The early colonists did not set out to invent this frame. They brought with them a tradition of heavy half-timber construction from the mother country. There was a great abundance of standing timber, cutting by hand was laborious, and timbers were used which were much stronger than required for strength. Posts and girts were eight and ten-inch square-hewn timbers.—Philadelphia Ledger.

People Are Not Hard Up

Notwithstanding that the impression prevails that the country is hard up and that strictest economy is necessary in the matter of expenditures, people are not hard up.

People have the money for the things they want, and as long as they have the money for the things they want they are not hard up.

In support of this contention we would call attention to the fact that bank deposits are up, building and loan deposits are on the increase, the bond market is good. Owners of automobiles are driving them as usual. The gas station men report that gasoline sales show no decrease.

If this is true, it is also true that people have the money for the things they want. If there is still plenty of money in the community, it is foolish to resign to a feeling of poverty and hard times. Merchants should present their merchandise in good, strong, well written advertisements full of optimism and sales argument.

If they do, it will create desire for the merchandise and business will begin to return to normal. The merchants can help the situation greatly and it will be to the benefit of all merchants to refuse to talk hard times and put up the best front possible and go after the business that is here if the minds of the people can be diverted from hard times talk long enough to permit them to buy.
